

Cheryl Schwartz, DVM

Dr. Schwartz graduated from Washington State University Veterinary School in 1978 and began studying acupuncture and traditional oriental medicine in 1979. As an early pioneer in the field of veterinary holistic medicine, Dr. Schwartz looked to the animals themselves to be her teachers, and they have been guiding her for over 25 years of clinical practice.

She is also author of “Four paws Five Directions” – “Natural healing for dogs and cats for A-Z” – and contributing author to “Veterinary Acupuncture; Ancient Art to Modern Medicine” – edited by Allan Schoen – and also “Complementary and Alternative Medicine” edited by Allan Schoen and Susan Wynn. Dr. Schwartz is one of the founding members of the American Holistic Veterinary Medical Association and is a worldwide educator for veterinary societies and certification courses in veterinary acupuncture and herbal medicine since 1989. She has been member of Board of Directors of IVAS. She runs her own private practice and consulting clinic in California for small animals and horses, and it is a completely holistic veterinary care center; in addition to Traditional Oriental diagnosis, acupuncture and herbal medicine, Dr. Schwartz integrates homeopathy, nutritional therapy and bio-energy medicine into her program.
